Precious Blood Sisters begin 175th year

DAYTON — This year the Sisters of the Precious Blood celebrate the 175th anniversary of the founding of their congregation, and have proclaimed Jan. 15, 2009 through Jan. 15, 2010 as a year of jubilee. The milestone anniversary will be celebrated with a full calendar of events. Highlights of the 175th anniversary year will include:

• A four-part lecture series on Precious Blood spirituality.

The first in the series will be hosted Saturday, Jan. 17, at the Sisters' motherhouse, Salem Heights, in Dayton. Free and open to the public, the daylong program is from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. and includes lunch. Precious Blood Sister Joyce Ann Zimmerman, director of the Institute for Liturgical Ministry in Dayton and an adjunct professor of liturgy at the Athenaeum of Ohio, will speak on "A Theology of Eucharist and Adoration: Perspectives on Precious Blood Spirituality."

Future lectures and presenters will be: June 29: Mercy Sister Marie Chin, "Living the Vowed, Consecrated Life in the 21st Century"; Oct. 3: Precious Blood Father Barry Fischer: "Precious Blood Spirituality: Wellspring of Our Call to Mission"; Jan. 16, 2010, Sister Dianne Bergant, a Sister of St. Agnes: "Precious Blood Spirituality from the Old Testament Perspective.

- Heights on Sunday, April 26;
- A Mass of Thanksgiving celebrated by Archbishop Daniel Pilarczyk at Precious Blood Church in Dayton, on Sunday, Oct. 4.
- Additional anniversary events are being planned for the Maria Stein area, as well as in other dioceses and states where Sisters of the Precious Blood also serve.

The Sisters of the Precious Blood were founded in 1834 in Switzerland by Mother Maria Anna Brunner, a widow, mother and grandmother. Filled with a yearning to do even more for God, she made a pilgrimage to Rome. There she was introduced to the spirituality of the Precious Blood of Jesus through the preaching of

The Sisters of the Precious Blood, founded in Switzerland by Maria Anna Brunner in 1834, began their ministry of prayer and education in Mercer County at Maria

St. Gaspar del Bufalo. She returned home eager to make this devotion the center of her life and to make it known to others.

Back in Switzerland, Brunner spent her nights and days in prayer, cared for the needs of the young men in the seminary, taught orphan girls in her home, and provided food for the area's poor. Her passionate love for God became contagious, and soon other women joined her in her life of prayer and good works. This little group became the nucleus of the Sisters of the Precious Blood.

The first Sisters of the Precious Blood arrived in Ohio pioneer territory in the spring of 1844. Cincinnati Archbishop John Baptist Purcell visited them within a week of their arrival, outlining the great needs of the local church. On Christmas Eve, the sisters moved into a log convent in New Riegel. There they began their treasured practice of Eucharistic adoration and began to minister to the needs of the growing population of German immigrants.

The congregation's motherhouse has been located in the Cincinnati archdiocese since the beginning, first in Maria Stein (1846) and, since 1923, in Dayton. From here, hundreds of Precious Blood Sisters have reached out to serve the needs of God's people in education, pastoral ministry and health care, and in varied ministries across the United States.

Today, Sisters of the Precious Blood serve throughout Ohio, as well as in Arizona, California, Colorado, Indiana, Kentucky and Michigan, and internationally in Chile and Guatemala, striving to be "a life-giving, reconciling presence in our fractured world."
