Clergy to marshal St. Pat parade

NEWS

MCCARTYVILLE — The village of McCartyville is gearing up for its 35th annual celebration of St. Patrick’s Day.

Grand marshals for the 2019 parade will be Catholic clergy from the McCartyville and St. Patrick area.

“We have been blessed in this area to have many men and women who have left their family and friends to serve God. We have invited 13 members from our community to be our guests at the fish fry and grand marshals of our parade. This is our way as a community to say thanks,” said event organizer Larry Huecker.

Erin Inman, daughter of Jeanne and Craig Inman, has been named queen of the festival.

The yearly event includes the parade, a fish fry, live entertainment, a putter golf outing and a foot race.

Invited to be grand marshals are the following:

- The Rev. Vince Hoying, a McCartyville native, attended Brunerdale Seminary in Canton and was ordained in 1958. He has served in Missouri, Oklahoma and Iowa and in hospitals in Cincinnati, Toledo and Lima. He is now retired at St. Charles Seminary in Carthagena.

- Sister Ann Catherine Lehmkuhl, a native of Minster, entered the Sisters of the Precious Blood in 1948, graduated in 1950 and made her final profession as a Sister of the Precious Blood in 1954. She was a teacher for more than 50 years in many parishes, including the McCartyville School.

- The Rev. Ken Pleiman, a native of Sidney, attended St. Charles Seminary in Carthagena and was ordained in 1970. He has served in Detroit, Columbus and Cleveland and currently serves the St. Joseph Parish in downtown Dayton.
